

Red Team Modeling Project 5: Final Guidance

Nedialko B. Dimitrov

1 Final Deliverables

The final deliverables for your project are due on Monday the 11th by 5pm. Please follow the following instructions to help me organize all of the project files:

1. Naming the files correctly helps a lot. For the example, suppose that your two team members have names Smith and Jones, and the project title is “US Potato Transport.” Of course, substitute your actual names and project title.
2. Please turn in all of your files zipped into a single file called: SmithJones-USPotatoTransport.zip. No spaces in the name, please.
3. The zip file should include:
 - (a) Your presentation slides, in power point format, called SmithJones-USPotatoTransport.pptx. No spaces in the name, please.
 - (b) Your executive summary, pdf format, called SmithJones-USPotatoTransport-ExecutiveSummary.pdf. No spaces in the name, please.
 - (c) All of your csv and gams file to reproduce your project results.
4. Thank you in advance for following the naming instructions, it really helps with posting the projects online.

2 Presentation Reviews

Each of you reviewed two preliminary executive summaries. During the presentations, you’ll give reviews for the presentation of those same two groups. As in the executive summary reviews, let the group know what you liked about their presentation and what they can improve on.

On the day that one of your assigned groups presents, please do the following:

- Write a 2-3 paragraph review of the group’s presentation. Bullet format is great for easily communicating your separate comments on the presentation, both positive and negative.
- Please email me your review by the end of the day on which the group presented, in pdf format. If the group’s project is “US Potato Transport,” call your review something like USPotatoTransport-PresentationReview.pdf.
- Do not include your name on your review, that way we can keep the reviews blind, which helps people be honest with their comments.
